3rd Sunday of Epiphany

Readings: Num 21:4-9; Gal 3:23-39 and Jn 3:1-16

For the most part we see Jesus surrounded by the ordinary people, but here we see him in contact with one of the aristocracy of Jerusalem. There are certain things that we know about Nicodemus.

Nicodemus must have been wealthy. When Jesus died Nicodemus brought for his body “a mixture of myrrh and aloes about a hundred pound weight” (John 19: 39), and only a wealthy man could have brought that.

Nicodemus was a Pharisee. In many ways the Pharisees were the best people in the whole country. There were never more than 6,000 of them. They formed a brotherhood by taking a pledge in front of three witnesses that they would spend all their lives observing every detail of the scribal law.

What exactly did that mean? To the Jew the Law was the most sacred thing in all the world. The Law was the first five books of the Old Testament. They believed it to be the perfect word of God. To add one word to it or to take one word away from it was a deadly sin. Now if the Law is the perfect and complete word of God, that must mean that it contained everything a man need know for the living of a good life, if not explicitly, then implicitly. If it was not there in so many words, it must be possible to deduce it. The Law as it stood consisted of great, wide, noble principles which a man had to work out for himself.

Nicodemus was a Pharisee, and it is astonishing that a man who regarded goodness in that light and who had given himself to that kind of life in the conviction that he was pleasing God should wish to talk to Jesus at all.

Nicodemus was a ruler of the Jews. This is to say that he was a member of the Sanhedrin. The Sanhedrin was a court of seventy members and was the supreme court of the Jews. It had religious jurisdiction over every Jew in the world; and one of its duties was to examine and deal with anyone suspected of being a false prophet. Again it is amazing that Nicodemus should come to Jesus at all.

It was by night that Nicodemus came to Jesus. There were probably two reasons for that:

- 1- It may have been a sign of caution. Nicodemus quite frankly may not have wished to commit himself by coming to Jesus by day. We must not condemn him. The wonder is that with his background, he came to Jesus at all. It was infinitely better to come at night than not at all. It is a miracle of grace that Nicodemus overcame his prejudices and his upbringing and his whole view of life enough to come to Jesus.
- 2- But there may be another reason. The rabbis declared that the best time to study the law was at night when a man was undisturbed. Throughout the day, Jesus was surrounded by crowds of people all the time. It may well be that Nicodemus came to Jesus by night because he wanted an absolutely private and completely undisturbed time with Jesus.

Nicodemus was a puzzled man, a man with many honors and yet with something lacking in his life. He came to Jesus for a talk so that somehow in the darkness of the night he might find light.

Spirituality: Mary, mother of hope

Maronites, like many other Eastern Catholic Churches, have a long-lasting and deep devotion to Mary harkening back to Saint Ephrem and the Fathers. They live in hope, imploring Mary as their Mother to intercede for them. In Scripture, the Chosen People of the Old Covenant lived in hope and yearned for the Messiah and the Mother of the Messiah. Her birth would usher His coming. Mary's roots are in the Old Testament and all the women prefigured her, announced her coming and were signposts of God's providence and love for His children.

Mary, Mother of Charity

Charity, God's Love and Grace poured in our heart, is the Christian gift to the world per excellence. The Beatitudes bring forth the love of God in ways that no human heart could have conceived, none except the woman who conceived in her heart and bore in her flesh love incarnate. Mary was a charitable person, a teacher by her example, and a powerful intercessor.

Mary, Mother of Faith

Mary stood at the foot of the Cross and did not fail the test. She continued to believe in Her Son and Redeemer even when nailed on the Cross. Mary's walk, like Abraham's walk, was in the dark night of the faith. Mary was a example of living faith, and a model of faith in our modern life. Mary's faith never failed and neither will our faith fail as long as we stand next to her at the foot of the Cross and we say with the apostles, "I believe, O Lord, strengthen my unbelief"

Wisdom: Life shovels dirt

One day a farmer's donkey fell down into a well. The animal cried piteously for hours as the farmer tried to figure out what to do. Finally he decided the animal was old, and the well needed to be covered up anyway, it just wasn't worth it to retrieve the donkey. He invited all his neighbors to come over and help him. They each grabbed a shovel and began to shovel dirt into the well.

At first, the donkey realized what was happening and cried horribly. Then, to everyone's amazement, he quieted down. A few shovel loads later, the farmer looked down the well, and was astonished at what he saw. As every shovel of dirt hit his back, the donkey did something amazing. He would shake it off and take a step up. As the farmer's neighbors continued to shovel dirt on top of the animal, he would shake it off and take a step up. Pretty soon, everyone was amazed, as the donkey stepped up over the edge of the well and trotted off.

The Moral:

Life is going to shovel dirt on you, all kinds of dirt. The trick to getting out of the well is to shake it off and take a step up. Each of our troubles is a stepping stone. We can get out of the deepest wells just by not stopping, never giving up! Shake it off and take a step up!

Remember the five simple rules to be happy:

1. Free your heart from hatred.
2. Free your mind from worries.
3. Live simply.
4. Give more.
5. Expect less.

Story: Mom's wisdom

My Mom is in her seventies, and has seen a lot in her lifetime. She faced challenges that we all face one way or the other. She has seen successes and many happy times throughout her life.

Recently, we were talking and I asked her if she could give me just three pieces of advice to live my life what would they be. After some thought, she said she would have to think about it. It surprised me that she wanted time to think about it. She always was free with her advice sometimes even when I didn't want to hear it.

I arrived at her house the next day where she handed me a piece of paper with her three pieces of wisdom written out. She explained to me that if she was only able to give me three, that these three were the most important.

As I read them, I realized the importance of what she was telling me. She wasn't telling me to save my money, nor was she telling me to work hard. Her 3 most important things to live a happy life were truly pieces of wisdom.

What were they? Here is the wisdom my Mom shared with me:

1. Make each new day count by helping someone or just making someone smile.
2. Don't dwell on life's troubles, think of the good times.
3. Don't worry about things you can't do anything about.

This was an interesting thing to do. Perhaps, like me, you have someone in your life that has been there for you, no matter what. My Mom has always been one of my biggest supporters and the wisdom she has given me over the years has helped shaped the person I am today.

Ask that person in your life to give you three pieces of advice to live a good life. You may be pleasantly surprised by the answers you get.

A Time to Laugh (46)

Spirituality

An American preacher in Beijing asked the waiter in a restaurant what Religion was for the Chinese.

The waiter took him out to the balcony and asked, "What do you see, sir?" "I see a street and houses and people walking and buses and taxis plying." "What else?"

"Trees." "What else?" "The wind is blowing."

The Chinese extended his arms and exclaimed, "that is religion, sir!"

(You're searching for it the way someone searches for sight with open eyes! It is too clear that it is hard to see.)

Human Nature

A former inmate of a Nazi concentration camp was visiting a friend who had shared the ordeal with him. "Have you forgiven the Nazis?" he asked his friend.

"Yes." "Well, I haven't. I'm still consumed with hatred for them."

"In that case," said his friend gently, "they still have you in prison."

(Our enemies are not those who hate us but those whom we hate.)

Innocence

A Kindergarten teacher was observing her classroom of children while they drew. She would occasionally walk around to see each child's work. As she got to one little girl who was working diligently, she asked what the drawing was? The girl replied, "I'm drawing God."

The teacher paused and said, "But no one knows what God looks like."

Without missing a beat, or looking up from her drawing, the girl replied, "They will in a minute."

Oooooooooooooooooops!

One day a little girl was sitting and watching her mother do the dishes at the kitchen sink. She suddenly noticed that her mother has several strands of white hair sticking out in contrast on her brunette head.

She looked at her mother and inquisitively asked, "Why are some of your hairs white, Mom?" Her mother replied, "Well, every time that you do something wrong and make me cry or unhappy, one of my hairs turns white." The little girl thought about this revelation for a while and then said, "Momma, how come ALL of grandma's hairs are white?"

Human Nature

A passenger on a train was giving the dining car waiter his order. "For dessert," he said, "I'll have tarts and ice-cream." The waiter said they had no tarts. The man exploded. "What? No tarts? That's absurd. I am one of the biggest customers this rail road has. Each year I organize trips for thousands of tourists and I have hundred of tons of freight transported on it. And when I myself travel on the line I cannot get a simple thing like tarts! I'll take this up with the chairman himself." The chef called the waiter aside and said, "We can get him the tarts at the next stop."

Right after the next stop the waiter was back again. "I'm happy to inform you, sir, that our chef has worked on these tarts especially for you. He hopes you will like them. And, with them, we would like to offer you this seventy-five old brandy, compliments of the line."

The passenger threw his napkin on the table, made a fist and shouted.

"To hell with the tarts! I'd rather be angry!"

Relationships

It was their golden wedding and the couple were kept busy all day with the celebrations and the crowds of relatives and friends who dropped in to congratulate them. So they were grateful when, towards evening, they were able to be alone on the porch watching the sunset, relaxing after the tiring day.

The old man gazed fondly at his wife and said, "Agatha, I'm proud of you!"

"What was that you said?" asked the old lady. "You know I'm hard of hearing. Say it louder." "I said I'm proud of you." "That's all right," she replied with a dismissive gesture. "I'm tired of you, too."

Animals:

--To his dog, every man is Napoleon; hence the constant popularity of dogs. (Aldous Huxley)

Answers:

--Answers are what we have for other people's problems.

--No answer is also an answer. (Danish proverb)

Anticipation:

--If pleasures are greatest in anticipation, just remember that this is also true of trouble. (Elbert Hubbard)

--A man's delight in looking forward to and hoping for some particular satisfaction is a part of the pleasure flowing out of it, enjoyed in advance. But this is afterward deducted, for the more we look forward to anything, the less we enjoy it when it comes. (Arthur Schopenhauer)

--We love to expect, and when expectation is either disappointed or gratified, we want to be again expecting. (Samuel Johnson)

--Nothing is so wretched or foolish as to anticipate misfortunes. What madness is to be expecting evil before it comes. (Seneca)

--If there's one thing I know, it's that God does love a good joke.

--Oxymoron Definition: A rhetorical figure in which incongruous or contradictory terms are combined.

EXAMPLE: Removing the Ten Commandments from the courthouse while making people in court swear to "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God." ... while your hand is on the Bible!

--Question: If you could live forever, would you and why? Answer: "I would not live forever, because we should not live forever, because if we were supposed to live forever, then we would live forever, but we cannot live forever, which is why I would not live forever," (Miss Alabama in the 1994 Miss USA contest.)

--"Instead of getting married again, I'm going to find a woman I don't like and just give her a house." (Drew Carey)

--"The problem with the designated driver program, it's not a desirable job, but if you ever get sucked into doing it, have fun with it. At the end of the night, drop them off at the wrong house." (Rod Stewart)

--"What do people mean when they say the computer went down on them?" (Jeff Foxworthy)

--When you wallow with pigs, expect to get dirty.

--The best sermons are lived, not preached.

--Most of the stuff people worry about ain't never gonna happen anyway.
