4th Sunday after the Holy Cross

Readings: Gen 41:38-44; 1Thes 5:1-11 and Mt 24:45-51

Both the Old and the New Testaments describe our existence in relation to God as one of waiting ... Waiting means not having and having at the same time ... The condition of man's relation to God is first of all one of not having, not seeing, not knowing, and not grasping. ... I think of the theologian who does not wait for God, because he possesses him, enclosed within a doctrine. I think of the biblical student who does not wait for God, because he possesses him, enclosed in a book. I think of the churchman who does not wait for God, because he possesses him, enclosed in an institution. I think of the believer who does not wait for God, because he possesses him, enclosed within his own experience. It is not easy to endure this not having God, this waiting for God. It is not easy to preach Sunday after Sunday without convincing ourselves and others that we have God and can dispose of him, It is not easy to proclaim God to children and pagans, to skeptics and secularists, and at the same time to make clear to them that we ourselves do not possess God, that we too wait for him. I am convinced that much of the rebellion against Christianity is due to the overt or veiled claim of the Christians to possess God, and therefore, also, to the loss of this element of waiting, so decisive for the prophets and the apostles. ... They did not possess God; they waited for him. For how can God be possessed? Is God a thing that can be grasped and known among other things? Is God less than a human person? We always have to wait for a human being. Even in the most intimate communion among human beings, there is an element of not having and not knowing, and of waiting. Therefore, since God is infinitely hidden, free, and incalculable, we must wait for him in the most absolute and radical way. He is God for us just in so far as we do not possess him. ... We have God through not having him.

Question & Answer (#36)

Question #36 “Why be a Catholic?”

Being a Catholic is how you fulfill the purpose of your existence: to know God and to be united with Him. The means that God has given us to enter that relationship with Him is faith in and obedience to His Son Jesus. This obedience includes following Jesus’ commands, including receiving Baptism.

The way we know and love Jesus is through His Church, which He established to teach, sanctify and shepherd people in His name. That means He wants you to belong to the Catholic Church. Why else would He go to the trouble of establishing it?

Through the teaching of the Church, Christ gives us His truth without error. Through the Sacraments and prayer of the Church, Christ gives us His grace and sanctifies us. Through the pastoral authority of the Church, Christ governs and shepherds us as His people.

Spirituality: I am a Christian

When I say, "I am a Christian", I'm not bragging of success, I'm admitting that I've failed, and cannot ever pay the debt.

When I say, "I am a Christian", I don't think I know it all, I submit to my confusion, asking humbly to be taught.

When I say, "I am a Christian", I'm not claiming to be perfect, my flaws are all too visible, but God believes I'm worth it.

When I say, "I am a Christian", I still feel the sting of pain, I have my share of heartache, which is why I seek His name.

When I say, "I am a Christian", I do not wish to judge, I have no authority... I only know I'm loved.

Wisdom: The Seven Wonders

A group of students were asked to list what they thought were the present Seven Wonders of the World. Though there was some disagreement, the following got the most votes:

- 1- Egypt's Great Pyramids
- 2- Taj Mahal
- 3- Grand Canyon
- 4- Panama Canal
- 5- Empire State Building
- 6- St. Peter's Basilica
- 7- China's Great Wall

While gathering the votes, the teacher noted that one quiet student hadn't turned in her paper yet. So, she asked the girl if she was having trouble with her list. The girl replied, "Yes, a little. I couldn't quite make up my mind, because there were so many." The teacher said, "Well, tell us what you have, and maybe we can help." The girl hesitated, then read, "I think the Seven Wonders of the World are:

1- to see

2- to taste

3- to touch

4- to hear

She hesitated a little, and then added,

5- to feel

6- to laugh, or Smile

7- and most of all, to love.

The room was so full of silence you could have heard a pin drop. Those things we overlook as simple and "ordinary" are truly wondrous. A gentle reminder that the most precious things in life cannot be bought, or built.

Story: Nails in the fence

There once was a little boy who had a bad temper. His Father gave him a bag of nails and told him that every time he lost his temper, he must hammer a nail into the back of the fence.

The first day the boy had driven 37 nails into the fence. Over the next few weeks, as he learned to control his anger, the number of nails hammered daily gradually dwindled down. He discovered it was easier to hold his temper than to drive those nails into the fence.

Finally, the day came when the boy didn't lose his temper at all. He told his father about it and the father suggested that the boy now pull out one nail for each day that he was able to hold his temper.

The days passed and the young boy was finally able to tell his father that all the nails were gone.

The father took his son by the hand and led him to the fence. He said, "You have done well, my son, but look at the holes in the fence. The fence will never be the same. When you say things in anger, they leave a scar just like this one. You can put a knife in a man and draw it out. It won't matter how many times you say I'm sorry, the wound is still there."

A verbal wound is as bad as a physical one.

Friends are very rare jewels, indeed. They make you smile and encourage you to succeed. They lend an ear, they share words of praise and they always want to open their hearts to us."

Jokes (189)

Love

A nun in search of enlightenment made a wooden statue of Buddha and covered it with a fine gold leaf. It was very pretty and everywhere she went she carried it with her.

Years passed and, still carrying her statue, the nun settled down in a small temple where there were many statues of Buddha, each with its own altar.

She began to burn incense before her golden Buddha each day but discovered, to her dismay, that some of the smoke wandered off to the neighboring altars.

So she made a paper funnel through which the smoke would ascend to her Buddha. This blackened the nose of the golden statue and made it very ugly.

Logic

Weary traveler: "Why in the name of heaven, did they build the railway station three kilometers away from the village?"

Helpful porter: "They must have thought it would be a good idea to have it near the trains, sir."

Religion

The Kamakura Buddha was lodged in a temple until one day a mighty storm brought the temple down. Then for many years the massive statue stood exposed to the sun and rain and wind and the changes of the weather.

When a priest began to raise funds to rebuild the temple, the statue appeared to him in a dream and said: "That Temple was a prison, not a home. Leave me exposed to the ravages of life. That's where I belong."

Education

A man who had just retired from forty-seven years of work as a reporter and editor phoned to the local Education Board and, after explaining his background in the newspaper business, said he would like to get involved in the local literacy program.

There was a long pause. Then someone at the other end said: "That would be fine. But would you want to teach or to learn?"

Owning a Man's Company

She is the kind of girl who does not care for a man's company – unless he owns it.

Source Not Important

The grandfather of William Jackson III died and left him twenty million dollars. A few days later William's girlfriend Roxanne suggested that they get married.

After just a few weeks of marriage, William felt that Roxanne was growing more and more distant and less affectionate. After a few months of marriage, William wondered if Roxanne cared about him at all. She seemed completely indifferent toward him. He felt that he needed to confront her.

When William finally got Roxanne to agree to speak with him, he said, "I'm beginning to think that the only reason you married me is that I inherited twenty million dollars from my grandfather."

Roxanne was slightly amused at William and assured him that this was not the case at all. "That's a ridiculous notion," she told him. "It would not have mattered to me who gave you the money!"
